

Deborah Blumenthal, Sol's wife and business partner, attends to duties behind the counter at Blumenthal's.

A young Sol Blumenthal (back row, second from left) stands with folded arms for a photo of the baker's union of his time. Just look at those faces!

So, who's the guy in all those photos?

It's Sol Blumenthal, grandfather of Broad Street founder and executive chef, Dan Blumenthal. Sol was born in Trenton, New Jersey in 1903 the son of Barney and Hannah, Eastern European immigrants via Ellis Island in the 1880s. The Blumenthals settled in Trenton, and Barney, a baker, immediately began practicing his trade. As soon as Sol and his older brother, Frank, could see above a bread bench, their father began teaching them everything he knew about his art. In 1946, Sol purchased a small storefront on Broad Street in Trenton, and Blumenthal's Bakery was opened for business. Sol and wife Deborah ran that bakery for twenty years.

In 1998, Dan Blumenthal, along with partner, Jeff Good, opened Broad Street Baking Company & Cafe as a tribute to Sol and the legacy he left behind. Everything you see in our cases — every pastry, loaf of bread, dessert, cake and cookie — was made by hand, by our staff, right here in our bakery in the back of the restaurant. It is our wish to return to a time and place where generation after generation of artisan bakers created baked goods from scratch, using their own two hands. We thank you for joining us and trust you will enjoy your visit.
